

Journey Kids Preschool's Philosophy statement identifies our reasons behind our practice and solidifies our faith through what we will be teaching.

Here at Journey Kids our goal is to set up your child for success during their learning, and growth throughout the next 18 years of their life. We believe that each child is a unique creation from God and is very loved. So, we strive to help strengthen the connection between God, the children, and families involved.

Children develop at different paces, so each educator will make themselves aware and keep expectations and goals specific to each child. Children's personal experiences and backgrounds will be a valuable piece to the child's continued learning.

It has been proven time and time again that children gain so much through play. Our educators will support that development by providing play experiences that are engaging and meaningful. Children will have opportunities to choose their own experiences which will involve what they are interested in and what they are keyed into in the moment. Children will participate in student lead activities which are designed to promote fine and gross motor skills, visual perception skills, letter/shape/color/number recognition, etc.

We will assist children in learning about others and specifically learning about themselves in a healthy way. This can mean learning personal boundaries, exploring new feelings, and how to avoid feeling uncomfortable and overwhelmed in new situations. A large piece of this will mean building on these newfound relationships to help the child learn how to maintain relationships and just be happy.

Parents are always welcome to pop in and check on the preschool when they would like, we operate on an open-door policy, so never hesitate to come check in whenever!
